

The March Brouillette Beat

THE WEARING OF THE GREEN

by Lenore Hetrick

The sky has turned a robin's blue,
The sun is bright and golden, too
The children's cheeks are apple red,
And the clouds are rosy overhead.

And why this fine and bright display?
Why all these colors this March day?
Sure, and the colors shout they mean
To match the wearing of the green!

The branches of the trees are singing,
Birds up in the sky are winging,
The river hums a merry tune,
And even the rocks start dancing soon.

Now why such merry revelry?
Why the cause of all this glee?
Sure, and it's easy to be seen
They're matching the wearing of the green!
